

I am fortunate enough to get an education in different countries in my childhood due to my father being in Indian Foreign Services. After getting exposed to experiential learning in different countries I had decided that I'll do my advanced studies in the United States of America in my childhood only.

In this era of globalization when we have cut throat competition everywhere and require a broader and international perspective to everything, it is important to have a world class degree to succeed in life.

I was a Commerce student in my senior secondary and I did under graduation in international business. My professors really guided me well and provided me with all the resources so that I could get in-depth knowledge and valuable learning in the areas of my interest. I enjoyed studying Accounting, Economics, International Trade, Marketing management, nuances of handling human resources, and understanding the culture of business made me firm to study Business management as my higher degree course.

I got an opportunity to do a six months internship in a textile company where I was able to study the real business environment and the fast pace changes coming in industrialization. At this point in time, I realized that an MBA from the United States would not only be beneficial for my personal growth but it will also be absolutely necessary for having better opportunities in the future.

My previous studies and practical experience have made me ready to study the higher course and my optimistic attitude and hunger to learn makes me the most suitable candidate to study MBA at your institution.

I have participated in different workshops, commerce seminars, field visits to industries, and also got an opportunity to get hands-on experience in my internship. I have a meritorious past academic record and equity promising non academic record. I have played badminton at the state level and hold a diploma in classical music. These art forms and sports also help me to relieve my stress and provide a clear mind to understand my academics better.

I sincerely feel that with my optimistic attitude, impeccable communication skills, and zeal to learn I am ready to start my advanced studies course, and studying at a world-class institution is a fast-paced country like the United States will provide me the much-needed self-confidence and discipline that is absolutely essential in this fast-changing era of technology and business.

I am hopeful that my endurance abilities along with my ability to empathize make a human being ready to face and take on the world but before that, I need to equip myself with the tools of the best education in order to solve all the hurdles that may come in my path.

I am enclosing my academic and co-scholastic credentials along with other achievements and am hopeful to get a positive outcome of my admission application.

Thank you
